She also gave a report of the provincial convention at Lethbridge, which gave the members a good idea of the good work being steadily carried on throughout the province by the W.C.T.U. There is no thought of retrenching, only going on. Mrs. Wood rendered a very pleasing vocal solo and Miss Mabel Shantz, of the Bible School, gave a piano solo. Legion Celebration Is Big Success

Over 400 persons sat down to the supper given by the Didsbury branch of the Canadian Legion on Remembrance Day. The supper was provided by the members' wives and friends of the Legion.

After supper the Legion presented the original play, "Rendez-Vous," written especially for the occasion. The members of the cast are to be complimented on the manner in which the play was presented.

The first scene was laid in a trench in the front line, and the effect was very realistic. "The Kid," (Pte. Dawne) who was killed in action, requested when dying that a rendezvous be established back home when the war was over, to which his friends agreed.

Act 2 was laid in Mrs. Dawne's home 15 years later, when the boys met to keep rendezvous. Many oldtime songs were introduced, which were well received by the audience.

Between the acts the Rev. A. J. Mitchell, Hon. Chaplain, gave a short address.

The following was the cast:

Captain Mac.....E. Craig
Paddy.....J. H. Robertson
Speedie.....E. Cogswell
Sim.....J. D. Thomas
Mulligan.....W. W. Gillrie
The Kid (Pte. Dawne).....R. Webster

British Museum Has Most Amazing Collection Of Old Newspapers Ever Assembled

Can you imagine coming down stairs one morning, getting your newspaper from the veranda and over your grape fruit reading as current news that for the first time in history a locomotive had run on rails drawing 38 coaches, the staggering speed of 12 miles per hour?

The British Museum has just opened a new branch for the storing of its collection of newspapers, the most amazing collection in the world. In this new building is housed a copy of every newspaper—British, Dominion and foreign—published since the year 1800.

The enormous output of literature of every kind has made this new building a necessity. The British Museum endeavours to obtain a copy of every book printed, of every illustration, of every book and of every story to the he-man Epic of Ethel M. Dell and the novels of Elton Glyn. There was no room for both books and newspapers so the latter have been given a new home.

The new building is located at Colindale, near Hendon, some 10 or 12 miles from the Museum itself. It is of concrete and steel with brick veneer and cost over £300,000. It already contains 275,000 bound volumes of newspapers weighing 20,000 tons. They occupy 14 miles of shelves. There is still room to absorb the world's output of newspapers for the next 50 years.

The reading room is 87 by 30 feet with sitting room and ample desk accommodation for 56 readers. The work of binding is done on the premises by the museum.

The building is open to the public. Application has first to be made and a ticket of admission obtained. Armed with this, anyone can walk in, fill up a form and in a remarkably short space of time any newspaper required is laid before him.

It is an indelible experience to read re-rehearsal notes what we all once had to learn laboriously as history. These papers go back to the Battle of Trafalgar and beyond; the escape of Napoleon from Elba, his defeat at Waterloo, the abolition of slavery throughout British and later American possessions; the deaths of George the Fourth, William of the Good Regimental number, Victoria the second and Edward VII.; the crossing of the Atlantic by the first steamer, the inventions of a thousand and one miraculous things which are commonplace today, the institution of penny postage, Franklin's ill-starred expedition to the Arctic, the proclamation of a republic in France, wars by the score.

From a historical viewpoint probably these newspapers have little value, history being a matter of perspective, but at least they do portray current thought at the time events which have since become history were actually taking place. What a tragedy they do not go back further still. Think of the thrill of reading, say, the news of the death of Cleopatra, "Queen of Egypt" suicides. Famous beauty succumbs to her bite" would make telling headlines.

Then the lead, inconceivable in her grief at the death of Anthony, Cleopatra decided to end her life. Dismissing her servants and accompanied only by her favorite asp she retired to her couch. She was found later by a servant who gave the alarm. The court physician diagnosed the case of death as snake-bite.

The paper's medical correspondent would then describe for the benefit of the uninformed, the precise effect of a bite in the bosom. Alas there is no such newspaper in existence.

But the collection of newspapers which is gathered here must cause politicians a lot of uneasiness. They can always be confronted with what they said in a moment of exasperation or in the days before they turned their political coats inside-out.

There is no point in the question as to what Gladstone said in '84. The answer is on the Gladstone, being dead, can never claim to have been said-reported.

Collectors Seek First Air Mail Envelope

French Group Willing To Pay Million Francs For It

A first offer of one million francs has been posted by a group of French stamp collectors for the first envelope ever carried by air mail, provided the envelope can be found and its authenticity proved.

The first air mail consisted of a single envelope carried aloft by a Frenchman, Jean-Pierre Blanchard, on Jan. 9, 1793, from a Philadelphia prison court yard to prove the military and commercial possibilities of balloons.

The first letter bore the signature of Washington, addressing good-will to the American citizens. After a flight of 45 minutes, the balloon landed at Woodbury, N.J., and the Washington air-mail letter was delivered to the mayor.

This flight is a matter of historical record. If found the envelope will be officially recognized as being the first air mail letter.

Prairie Wheat Crop

Bank Of Montreal Report Places Yield At 415,000,000 Bushels

Taken as a whole, the principal field crops of Canada have seldom attained such total volume as during the present season or been of a higher quality. Yields were generally satisfactory in each of the provinces, despite sectional reverses due to weather conditions or other causes. A preliminary estimate of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics placed the total yield of wheat in the prairie provinces at 440,000,000 bushels but from latest reports a total of around 415,000,000 bushels is now anticipated. Even so, the yield is well in excess of the ten-year average and the largest crop since 1928.

Last year's prairie crop was approximately 300,000,000 bushels. The wheat marketed to date has graded exceptionally high and tests indicate that the high protein content will be maintained. The western oat crop is estimated at 274,000,000 bushels against 183,700,000 bushels last year and the barley crop at 70,000,000 bushels as compared with 50,500,000 bushels.

The Canning Season

Thrifty Housewife Will Store Away Fruits and Vegetables For Winter Use

A timely suggestion comes from the Dominion Fruit Branch at Ottawa in the form of a message which has a real appeal to housewives all over Canada, whether in the farm home or in the city. We all know the difficult straits in which many of our fellow citizens find themselves as a result of conditions entirely beyond their control. With a wealth of fruits and vegetables available at low or prices than for many years, and with other necessary things such as sugar and containers equally available, there should be no need to elaborate about a ready response to the appeal "Just can a little more, if you can, when you can."

Little Things To Fight

Simple Measures Can Be Taken To Control Internal Parasites In Animals

Dr. Lionel Stevenson, Provincial Zoologist for Ontario, in a recent review of work being done in connection with the control of internal parasites of animals stated that those which give principal cause of concern in the livestock industry are comparatively few. Of these he named six principal internal parasites in sheep, two in swine, two in cattle, three in horses, two in poultry, and five in fur-bearing animals. In the case of most of these parasites it is possible to check their ravages by simple control measures.—Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Fur Auction

Collection Of Arctic Timber-Wolf Skins Sold In Winnipeg

A collection of 282 arctic timber-wolf skins was sold by auction in Winnipeg recently, the outstanding feature of the Dominion Fur Auction Company's October sale of raw furs. The skins were the property of the Dominion Government and on each one of them a bounty of $20 had been paid to the trapper regardless of its size or quality. A substantial portion of the pelts had been taken from small pups and the average price realized was consequently lowered considerably.

Prices ranged all the way from 25 cents for small damaged skins up to $20.50 for large sizes of good quality. The collection averaged $11.

A collection of late-caught beaver ranged between $11 and $17.50 and averaged $8.55 unchanged to five per cent. higher than the prices realized in August. Cross fox sold unchanged to five per cent. higher, realizing from $1.80 for badly rubbed skins up to forty dollars for good specimens.

The mink collection was very springy and prices realized were not representative. The range was 25 cents up to $5.00. Red foxes were in poor demand and mostly bought back. Muskrats were all bought back.

White foxes brought around $18 for ones and twos with average Mackenzie River and Chesterfield Inlet lots bringing from $16 to $16.75, unchanged from the August level.

Marten advanced 10 per cent, ranging up to $21.50 and averaging $16.50. Otter was in poor demand and sold unchanged, the range being from $2 to $16.

A collection of 2,500 weasel attracted fair demand, advancing about five per cent. Prices ranged from 25 cents up to $2 1/2 cents and averaged 30 cents for the skins sold.

Ordinary wolves declined about 10 per cent, ranging from $8.25 down to $2.75 and averaging $5.00.—Montreal Free Press.

Knew What He Had

He had dined well, but unwittingly at last the time came for him to go home.

In the street he approached a policeman.

"Others," he said faintly, "I'm looking for a parking place."

The policeman looked hard at him.

"But you've no car, sir," he said.

"Oh, yes I have!" said the reveler. "It's in the parking-place I'm looking for."

+ Do You Know? +

Photograph, Canadian National Museum

THAT although practically everyone who has been in the Canadian northland has heard and seen a Loon, few have ever discovered their nesting place or seen their eggs? The photograph shows a Loon's nest with two eggs in it.

Motor vehicle officials in Massachusetts are convinced that there are eight big points of difference between drivers who do not have accidents and those whose records are beset with mishaps.

They believe if all drivers could be made to realize that these eight accident factors are the primary ones, and that if they both knew what they were and how to avoid them, the traffic safety situation would be benefited enormously.

That is why they devote two months every year at the height of the travel season to the especially strict enforcement of these eight "thou shalt nots" with the idea of educating drivers as to their importance. The campaign is more, then, than a sporadic period of rigorous enforcement.

It is not so interesting for the average motorist to sit down with a pencil before reading the list of mishap factors and see how many of the eight he can name and in what order he places them. They have not been selected by chance but on the basis of a thorough study of traffic mishaps over a long period of years. The list follows:

Driving too fast for conditions.

Passing another vehicle going in the same direction when the view ahead is obstructed.

Failure to keep to the right of the road.

Failure to slow down for intersections.

Failure to slow down when approaching pedestrians.

Failure to observe the law regarding stopping for street cars taking on or discharging passengers.

Disregard of traffic control devices, signs, signals and stop lights.

Dangerous and improper parking, as on curves and corners.

The eight points might well be taken by any motorist anywhere as his guide to an accidentless driving experience. If he were to undertake the task of self-education, it is doubtful that he could find a better point of beginning than that of learning just what careless, heedless, or reckless manifestation in traffic is likely to get him into trouble.

He could make enormous headway in improving his safety were he to realize the full meaning of only the first factor; that of driving too fast for conditions. There never has been an accident, tabulation or analysis which did not rank this as the most serious breach against the canons of safe operation. Even the most liberal-minded motor vehicle officials, those who have stood for the elimination of all maximum speed limit laws, enter no demurrer to this indictment of speed.

Therefore, if the car operator wants to be safe as far as the Massachusetts eight points are concerned, his procedure is to decide to use his intelligence at all times in selecting his speed and to obey the law with respect to the other seven qualifications of a careful operator.

Record Sugar Beet Crop

The largest crop on record, the yield of sugar beets grown this year in the province of Alberta, Canada, is estimated at nearly 130,000 tons from which about 36,000,000 pounds of sugar will be produced with several hundred tons of molasses.

Mountain goats are claimed as the rarest and wildest of Rocky Mountain game.

Instructions For Dry-picking Turkeys*KNIFE: We recommend a narrow blade knife with a good point.
A small kitchen knife can be ground down to answer the purpose, if it is made of good material.BLEEDING: Hang the bird by the feet, breast towards you. With the left hand grasp the head of the bird, the top of the head resting in palm of hand. Let the thumb and forefinger come around the head,
applying pressure at base of jaw, causing mouth of bird to open and making insertion of the knife easy.
It is necessary to cut both veins in neck, either cross or angular. (Don't make straight cut towards end of beak). These veins lie just at base of skull and when properly cut bird will bleed freely. Cutting too far back will cause clots to form in neck. Cutting too far forward, without striking vein, will not enable you to get proper bleeding.BRAINING: Immediately after bleeding it is necessary to pierce the brain of bird to cause feather muscles to relax, so feathers can be removed without tearing skin. To brain the bird insert knife in centre of groove in mouth. Point blade towards top of head. Press on knife until point enters brain cavity, causing bird to shudder. Care should be taken in this operation. Proper braining consists of piercing brain so that bird is only paralyzed, and feathers can then be removed without difficulty.
If you kill bird when braining,
this will cause feathers to "set" so they cannot be removed easily or without tearing skin.REMOVING FEATHERS: After bird has been bled and brain started picking by removing the large tail feathers with a twist, and then pull the large feathers from the wings.
Birds that are allowed to become cold will be very difficult to pick.
In removing feathers do not pull against grain of skin. Remove all feathers, including wing and tail feathers, and all pin feathers that detract from the appearance of bird.
A good turkey that is not picked clean either has to be cleaned before it is graded, or it has to be put into a lower grade because it isn't properly picked. When turkey has been properly picked give bird a swinging yolk to remove blood from mouth.
It is important to keep birds clean, and the vent should be emptied by squeezing.COOLING: Birds should be chilled for 24 hours before packing, and temperature of room in which they are chilled should be around 32 to 35 degrees. Do not pile birds while being cooled, keep them spread out so air can get around them. Birds should not be allowed to freeze, as they have to be thawed before they can be packed for market, and this not only hurts appearance of bird, but one that has been frozen and thawed will, in many cases, not hold up long enough to reach the market in good condition.PACKING: When birds have been properly chilled wrap heads in clean paper and pack in clean boxes or barrels, after these empty packages have been lined with paper.
New meat (up to 15 lbs. of meat) should be packed in one box or barrel.Boys Conference.The conference of the Tuxis and Trail Ranger groups of Bowden, Olds, Didsbury, Carstairs and Crossfield, will be held at the Knox Church today (Thursday).The conference will be led by Mr.
Reg. Rose, and the principal speaker will be Mr. C. L. Brown, of the Y. M. C. A., Calgary. The conference will commence at 5 p. m. and a banquet will be given at 8 o'clock.A public meeting will be held at 8 p. m., to which all interested are invited.WEDDINGS*SHERICK—LEWISA very pretty wedding was solemnized Oct. 31 by Rev. C. J. Hallman at the home of the bride's parents at Cremona, when Miss Lena Lewis became the bride of Mr. Gordon Sherick, of Didsbury.The bride was pretty in a pleasing brown outfit and carried a bouquet of carnations and ferns. She was attended by her sister Ruth. The groom was supported by Mr. Loyal dinner was served to the relatives and friends present.After a short honeymoon spent in Calgary, the happy couple returned their present home.SIOUFFER—HITCHENSOn October 31st, 1932 at the home of Miss Fanny Swain in Didsbury,

officiating.The bride was dressed in georgette crepe and carried a bouquet of ferns and roses, while the groom wore the conventional navy blue.After the ceremony a dainty buffet lunch was served.Best wishes are extended to the happy pair."DON'TS"

Don't scald your turkeys.

Don't remove head, feet or entrails.

Don't dress birds while they are any feed in crops.Don't dress and ship extremely small, thin and immature birds. It will pay you to keep this class of poultry on the farm, feed it well and dition, as compared with accepting a

Don't tie birds with string.

Young People
Enjoy Hike

At 7 o'clock Friday morning the members of the junior and senior
C.G.I.F. groups, Tuxis and Trail
Rangers, to the number of about 40 met and hiked to "The Rocks," south-east of town.

A Remembrance Day service, led by the four leaders, Miss Black, Mr.
and Mrs. Boorman and Mr. Ormond Phillipson, was held around the campfire. The theme was "World Friendship."

Breakfast, cooked on the campfire was served, after which games were played.

All present voted it to have been a most enjoyable and instructive meeting and it was decided to make it an annual event.

Chas. Yule to Judge
Kansas Shorthorns

J. Charles Yule, of Carstairs, one of Canada's best known Shorthorn breeders, will judge this breed at the American Royal Livestock Exposition
to be held in Kansas City, November 12-20. Mr. Yule recently returned from Portland, where he officiated
in the Shorthorn ring at the Pacific International, October 15-22.

The Kansas Royal is reckoned as one of the outstanding purebred shows on the American continent, and an invitation to judge one of the breeds there is, according to livestock men, a compliment of high order.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

The federal government made guarantees to the banks to permit the Canadian co-operative wheat pools to continue hedging operations.
Prime Minister R. B. Bennett stated in the house of commons Monday.
If hedging had been discontinued,
the Canadian crop could not be marketed, he said.

with a surplus of $181 66, compared with a deficit of $16,364 21 for the year 1931, according to the annual report and financial statement submitted by N. J. Christie, president, and E. D. Adams, chairman of the finance committee, in the Palliser Hotel on Monday afternoon.

Film Contrasts Chinese Types

Two widely-contrasted character
roles are played in "Charlie Chan's Chance," the Fox Films dramatic thriller, coming to the Opera House for Saturday evening's performance
only, and both are those of Orientals.
Warner Oland, widely famed for his Chinese characterizations, portrays the role of the suave and soft-spoken detective from Honolulu, and Edward Peil, Sr. appears as a scheming and merciless Oriental.

Both Oland and Peil are blessed with facial contours adapted to their roles and are masters of makeup in addition to being splendid actors.
Both men are said to give the best performances of their screen careers.
The plot has to do with the solution of a bewildering murder mystery by the brilliant and analytical Chinese detective, who follows seemingly insignificant clues until he brings the criminal to bay, incidentally clearing of suspicion a boy and a girl who are in love.
The cast includes Alexander Kirkland, H. B. Warner, Ralph Morgan, Marion Nixon, James Kirkwood,
Linda Watkins and James Todd.
"Charlie Chan's Chance" is John Blystone's fifty-fourth directorial effort for Fox Films.

Pie Crust Easily Made

No Skill Required For Success With New Method

The making of a good pie crust used to be one of the criteria by which a housewife's skill was judged. Most experienced cooks will remember the anxiety with which they learned to blend flour and shortening, and their difficulty in adding just the right amount of ice water. Since different flours have varying capacities for absorbing moisture it took experience to know by the "feel" of the dough when it was ready for rolling. The filling was not as hard to make, from a technical point of view, but it took time and there were plenty of utensils to wash afterward! Now there is a new method of making pie with crumb crusts and uncoked fillings which is being hailed with delight.

Sweetened Condensed Milk is the "magic" ingredient which makes these new pies possible. These easy combinations of pie crusts and fillings are divided into two groups: meringue pies and cream pies. The fillings in each case are made by blending sweetened condensed milk and lemon juice. This makes a thick, rich base to which various kinds of fresh fruits may be added.

In making the crust for meringue pies blend one cup crumbs (graham cracker, toasted graham bread, chocolate wafers or lemon shapes) with 1/4 cup sweetened condensed milk and a few grains of salt. Line a well-buttered pie tin with this crumbly mixture and pat into shape. Pie made with this crust should be spread with meringue and require only as much time in the oven as is needed to brown the fluffy topping.

If whipped cream is to be used in place of meringue roll 1/4 cup of crumbs and cover bottom of buttered pie plate. Cut halves of wafers or crackers and set them around the edge of the pie plate. This type of crust needs no baking at all.

Both types of pie require thorough chilling for several hours. Raspberries, blueberries or strawberries may be used in place of blackberries in the Blackberry Meringue Pie which is given below.

BLACKBERRY MERINGUE PIE
1/2 cup 1/4 can Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk
1/4 cup lemon juice
2 eggs
1 cup blackberries
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
Toasted Graham Bread Pie Crust

Blend together Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk, lemon juice and eggs. Fold in blackberries which have been slightly crushed. Pour into nine-inch pie plate lined with Toasted Graham Cracker Pie Crust. Cover with meringue made by beating egg whites until stiff and adding sugar. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until brown. Chill before serving.

An Optical Illusion

Experience Most Drivers Have When Approaching Intersection

A car coming from the right at a street intersection will always seem to be going faster than it actually is. This is an optical illusion produced by the action of yours and the other fellow's car arriving at the point of a "traffic wedge" at the same time. As the cars near the point of intersection they seem to increase in speed when as a matter of fact they may be slowing down.

When meeting a car under such circumstances it is best to be guided by the illusion and slow down accordingly, but if caught in a situation where you are too late to avoid a collision by stopping it is well to know that the other car is not travelling as fast as it seems and that you can reach the crossing safely by speeding up a little.

Deserves The Honor

Earl Riving Landed Award Of Field Marshal's Baton

General Riving had a remarkably good record as a commander in the great war and richly deserves the field marshal's baton that has been awarded to him. The Canadian expeditionary force served under General Riving who, after the war, became governor-general of this Dominion.

When a British soldier is given "the baton," he reaches the highest rank in the army, that of field marshal. The baton is a short staff presented by the King as a symbol of office. No one is made a field marshal unless he is of royal blood or has rendered distinguished service.

FAT MAN LOSES 63 lbs.

Kruschen and Walking

Overweight men who want to lose a few pounds can have the benefit of this man's experience. He gives them a tip for publication.

"In a little over twelve months I have reduced my weight from 327 lbs. to 164 lbs., by taking a dose of Kruschen Sulfate every morning for six months, and taking walking exercise every day. This remarkable achievement is all the more interesting when I consider that I did not resort to any form of dieting." G. L. B.

You can take off fat with Kruschen Sulfate if you will use one-half teaspoon in hot water every morning before breakfast, modify your diet, and exercise regularly.

While you are losing fat you will be gaining in energy, in endurance—in ambition. The old arm chair won't hold you any more, you'll want to be up and doing, you'll enjoy work and active recreation and you'll sleep like a top. You'll lose fat, and probably five years longer.

Canadian Wheat Exports

Volume Is Much Greater This Year Than Previous Season

For the first 11 weeks of the current crop year, exports of Canadian wheat totalled 53,650,000 bushels compared with 29,433,299 bushels for the same period of last year, according to a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. For the week ended October 34, the total was 6,949,766. This was a decline from the previous week of nearly 1,000,000 bushels.

The following table shows the quantities exported and their channels of exportation in the first 11 weeks:

Street Named After Canadian Captain

One Of Churchill's Thoroughfares Will Be Called Bernier

One of the streets of the new town site to be opened up in Churchill next spring has been named after a living Canadian, Captain J. E. Bernier of Lewis, Que. He is the only Canadian now alive to be given this recognition in the building of Canada's new northern port on Hudson Bay. All the other streets have been named after explorers and navigators of the north lands long since departed.

Russia Imports Wheat

Becomes An Importer As Well As An Exporter

For the first time in a number of years, Soviet Russia has become an importer as well as an exporter of wheat. The greater part of her imports were from Canada.

Official figures revealed that during the first eight months of 1932, the nation—known as the granary of Europe—imported more wheat than it sold abroad. This was not, however, the case with other grains and cereals.

An official of the commissariat for foreign trade, explained in order to supply the increased needs of the Far East it had been found more expeditious and less of a strain on badly overworked transport to buy wheat abroad for ocean delivery at Vladivostok rather than ship it there by rail from Ukraine.

Communist spokesmen denied there was any actual wheat shortage. They pointed out that Russia was still exporting.

Exports of wheat from Canada to Soviet Russia were from the grain fields of Alberta and were shipped from Vancouver to Vladivostok during the summer months.

Of the total imports of Soviet Russia, Canada supplied approximately 1,597,248 bushels, shipped in eight cargoes from the Pacific coast ports.

Branded Beef Is Popular

Now Being More Fully Appreciated By Consumers, As Shown By Sales Increase

The annual report of the Minister of Agriculture for Canada for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1932, contains the following reference with respect to officially branded beef:

"That the advantage of being able to purchase beef which carries some definite indication of quality is being more fully appreciated by consumers is apparent from the steady increase in sales of graded beef. Sales of this product for the last calendar year totalled over 17,000,000 pounds, and weekly reports which are received from all establishments which are branding beef under the regulations indicate a steady and gratifying increase in sales for the first few months of the present year."

Valveless Motor Device For Boats

Vast Alterations In Engine Production Seen By Inventor

Invention of a valveless four-cylinder motor for boats is claimed at Indianapolis, by John Irvine, who says he worked eighteen years on the project. Irvine believes the invention may result in vast alterations in engine production.

Valveless motors of two cylinders are in use, according to Irvine, but four-cylinder engines have failed because of sticking of cylinders. Irvine said he had overcome this difficulty and found his invention to be a success in several tests.

The motor is water-cooled and is capable of driving a small craft 40 miles an hour, according to its inventor.

Irvine said he believed that with a few additional improvements his motor could be adapted to aeroplanes and automobiles.

An Important Business

The making of pulp, trees, and shoe findings in Canada has grown into quite an important business. The factory value of the output in 1931 was $1,196,403. The business also turns out some interesting sidelines, not included in the above. These are alloy wheels, long deerskins, wooden candy spoons and sticks, etc. The factory value of these last year was $21,160. There are seven factories in Quebec, two in Nova Scotia and two in Ontario.

Mixed Marriages Not Favored By Italians

And Nearly All Weddings Are In Place Of Worship

A curious "stay home" custom still prevails among Italians with regard to marriage. There are hardly any mixed marriages. Of those who found spouses last year, 99.95 per cent. of the Catholic men married Catholic wives. Of the very small fraction who went further afield married women of other Christian cults, and the other married wives of the Jewish faith.

Of the women, rather fewer Catholics married Protestants or Jews and only a dozen espoused men who registered as "without any religion." On the other hand 28.52 per cent. of the Jewish men who married and 27.02 per cent. of the Jewish brides chose either Catholics or Protestants.

Although a purely civil marriage is now legal, about 96.58 per cent. were married in a place of public worship.

Both girls had their 'premiers de jeunesses' served to them in their rooms, so that each one's morning mail was an unknown quantity to the other until they met downstairs.

"From Lady Anne?" Jean looked interested. "What does she say?" "She says—she writes—," here Claire floundered and came to a stop as though uncertain how to proceed, the little puzzled frown deepening between her brows. "Oh, Jean, she had a special reason for writing—some news—"

Jean's arm, hanging slackly at her side, jerked suddenly. Something in Claire's half-frightened, deprecating air sent a thrill of foreboding through her. Her heart began to beat within her.

"News?" she said in a harsh, strangled voice. "Tell me quick—what is it? . . . Blaise? He's not—dead?"

Her face, drained of every drop of colour, her suddenly pinched nostrils and eyes stricken with quick fear drew a swift cry from Claire.

"No—no!" she exclaimed in hasty reassurance. "It's good news! Good—no bad!"

Jean's taut muscles relaxed and she leaned against the wall as though seeking support.

"You frightened me," she said dully. "Good news? Then it can't be for me. What is it, Claire? Is Nick?" forcing a smile—"coming out here to see you?"

Claire nodded. "Yes, Nick—and Blaise with him." Jean stared at her.

"Blaise—coming here? Oh, but he mustn't! he mustn't! Oh, in sudden panic, 'I couldn't go through it all again! I couldn't!'"

Claire slipped an arm round her. "You won't have to," she answered. Because, Jean—Jean! Blaise has the right to come now. He's free!"

"Free?" Jean repeated. "What do you mean? How can he be free?"

"Nesta is dead," said Claire simply. "Dead?" Jean began to laugh a trifle hysterically. "Oh, yes, she's been dead before. But—"

"She is really dead this time," said Claire. "That is why Lady Anne has written—to tell us."

"I can't believe it!" muttered Jean. "I can't believe it!"

"You must believe it," insisted Claire quietly. "It is all quite true. She was buried last week in the little churchyard at Coombe Exe, and Lady Anne writes that Nick and Blaise will be here almost as soon as her letter. They're on their way now—now, Jean? Do you understand?"

Her eyes filling with tears, Claire watched the gradual realization of the amazing truth dawn in Jean's face. That face so tragically young, so finely and spiritualized by suffering, glowing with a new light; a glory of unimaginable hope lit itself in the tired golden eyes, and on the half-parted lips there seemed to quiver those kisses which still waited to be claimed.

Jean passed her hand across her eyes like one who has seen some bright light of surpassing radiance.

"Tell me, Claire," she said at last, tremblingly. "Tell me . . ." She broke off, unable to manage her voice.

"I'll read you what Lady Anne says," replied Claire quickly. "After writing that Nesta is dead and Nick and Blaise are coming here, she goes on: 'Poor Nesta! One cannot help feeling sorry for her—killed so suddenly and so tragically. And yet such a death seems quite in the picture with her lawless, wayward nature! She was shot, Claire, shot in the Boundary Woods by a Frenchman who had apparently followed her to England for the express purpose. It appears he met her at Chateau Varigny, in the days when she was posing as Madame de Chassaigne—did not know that she had a husband already. So, naturally, he hoped eventually to win her, and Nesta (who, as you know, would flirt with the butcher's boy if there were no one else handy) encouraged him and allowed him to make love to her to his heart's content. Then, after her return to Staple, he learned of her marriage, and, furious at having been so utterly deceived, he followed. He must have watched very carefully for some days, as he apparently knew her favourite walks, and waylaid her one afternoon in the woods. What passed between them we shall never know, for Chassaigne killed her and then immediately turned his revolver on himself. Blaise and Nick heard the shots and rushed down to the Boundary Woods where the shots had sounded—you'll know where I mean, the woods that lie along the border between Willow Ferry and Staple. There they found them, Nesta was dead, and de Chassaigne dying. He had just strength enough to confide in Blaise all that I have written. I am writing to you, because I think it might come as too great a shock to Jean as you say she is still so far from strong. You must tell her—"

Jean interrupted the reading with a shout of laughter.

"Oh, Claire! Claire! You blessed infant! I suppose all those preliminary remarks of yours about a letter from Lady Anne and the 'news' it contained were by way of preparing me for the shock—breaking the news' in fact?"

"Yes," admitted Claire, flushing a little.

Jean roared with laughter—gay, spontaneous laughter such as Claire had not heard issue from her lips since the day when Madame de Varigny had come to Staple.

"And you just about succeeded in frightening me to death!" continued Jean. "Oh, Claire, Claire, you adorable little goose, didn't you know that good news never kills?"

"I didn't feel at all sure," returned Claire, laughing a little, too, in spite of herself. "You've looked lately as though it wouldn't take very much of anything—good or bad—to kill you!"

"Well, it would now," Jean assured her solemnly. "Not all the powers of darkness would get me against me. I verily believe." She paused, frowning a little. "How beastly it is, though, to feel outrageously happy because someone is dead! It's indecent. Poor little Nesta! Oh, Claire! Is it hateful of me to feel like this? Do say it isn't, because—because I can't help it!"

"Of course it isn't," protested Claire. "It's only natural."

"I suppose it is. And I really am sorry for Nesta—though I'm so happy myself that it sort of swamps it. Oh, Claire darling!—the shadow passing and sheer gladness of soul bubbling up again into her voice—"I'm bound to kiss someone—at once. I'll have to be you! And look! Those two may be here any moment—Lady Anne said so. I'm going to make myself beautiful—if I can. I wish I hadn't grown so thin! The most ravishing frock in the world would look a failure draped on a clothes-horse. Still, I'll do what I can to conceal from Blaise the hideous ravages of time. And I'm not going to wear black—I won't welcome him back in sackcloth and ashes! I won't! I won't! I've got the darlingest cloak upstairs—a filmy grey thing like moonlight. I'm going to wear that. I know—I know—softly—that Glyn would understand."

And if he knew anything at all about it—and one would like to think he did—it is quite certain Peterson would have approved his daughter's decision. For to his incurably romantic spirit, the idea of a woman going to meet her lover of whom a malignant fate had so nearly robbed her altogether, clad in the subtle imitations with which she had paid filial tribute to her father's death, would have appeared of all things the most incongruous and irreconcilable.

So that when at last a prehistoric vehicle, chartered from the Inn of the Green Dragon in the village below, toiled slowly up the hill to Beinfels and Blaise and Nick climbed down from its rusty interior, a slender moon-grey figure, which might have been observed standing within the shadow of a tall stone pillar and following with straining eyes the snail-like progress of the old-fashioned carriage up the steep hill road, flitted swiftly back into the shelter of the house, Claire, dimpling and smiling at the great gateway of the castle, alone received the travellers.

"Go along that corridor," she said to Blaise, when they had exchanged greetings. "To the end and door of all. That's the sun-parlour. You'll find Jean there." She thought it appropriate—smiling at him.

Then as Blaise strode down the corridor indicated, she turned to Nick and asked him with an adorable co-quetry why he, too, had come to Beinfels?

"I've heard it is the House of Dreams-Come-True," replied Nick promptly. "It seemed a likely place in which to find you, most beautiful!"

Claire beamed at him.

"Oh, am I that—really, Nick?" "Of course you are. The most beautiful in all the world. Claire"—luckily his arm into hers—"tell me, how is the soul-rebuilding process getting on? That's my I come, really, you know, to find out if you had completely finished redecorating your interior?"—I can vouch for the outer woman myself—with an adoring glance at the fluffy ash-blond hair and pure little Breuze profile.

Claire rubbed her cheek against his sleeve. To a woman who has been for four months limited almost exclusively to the society of one other woman—the rough feel of a man's coat-sleeve (more particularly if he should happen to be the man) and the faint fragrance of tobacco which pervades it form an almost delicious combination.

Claire hauled down her flag precipitately.

"I'm ready to go back to England any time now, Nick," she murmured. "Are you? Darling! How soon can you be ready? In a week? Tomorrow? Next day?"

"Quite soon. And meanwhile, mightn't you—you and Blaise—stay for a bit at the Green Dragon?"

"We might," replied Nick solemnly, quite omitting to mention that something of the sort had been precisely their intention when leaving England.

Meanwhile Blaise had made his way to the door at the end of the corridor. Outside it he paused, overwhelmed by the sudden realization that he yond that wooden barrier lay holy ground—Paradise! And the Angel with the Flaming Sword stood at his gate no longer. . . .

She was waiting for him over by the window, straight and slim and tall in her moon-grey, her hands hanging in front of her tight-clasped like those of a child. But her eyes were woman's eyes.

Britain's Oldest Woman

Never Could Be Persuaded To Disclose Her Age

Mrs. Arabella Bridgman, who has just died at The Laurels, Clewer Windsor, at the age of 103, was believed to be the oldest woman in Britain, but she never admitted it. She refused to put her age on any document—even the census paper—and she would not fill in income tax forms.

She had lived at The Laurels for more than 80 years, but she always refused to have gas or electricity in the house, which was lit by candles.

All Her Children Were Troubled With Diarrhoea

Mr. J. J. Bicket, R.R. 1, Enfield, B.C., writes:—"Last Summer all my children were troubled with diarrhoea, and were so bad I did not know what to do. A friend told me to give them Dr. Fowles' Extract of Wild Strawberry, so I got a bottle, and after a couple of doses you should have seen the change. The children were soon well again, and I am very thankful to your wonderful remedy. I find it the only one that relieves so easily and quickly."
